The ten-meter wooden bridge is the next spot from here that runs over a river where you can fill your water bottles. After going through the bridge, you will arrive at Begum, considered the best resting destination overlooking the costly Bagdi and Navali Bugyals. You will find two more rivers after hiking 20 minutes from this place. Gujreni stream (second stream) will finally take you to a stunning clearing in lush woods. Today, you will set your camps here. This area carries a woody fragrance and is enclosed by Rhododendron and umber-brown Oak forests. After installing your camps, you can spot some birds around, such as Blue-fronted Redstart, Asian Barred Owlet, and Himalayan Woodpecker. The lake is usually frozen during the highest winter seasons. You can rest here and immerse yourself in the deep silence of this environment. The paths dive directly into the thick Rhododendron and Oak woods with a steep incline for another hour. After walking higher, you will enjoy a peaceful view of Bekaltal Lake. The cover of the woods is quite dense and keeps away most of the sunlight. This enables patches of snow to remain on the paths. After walking for an hour, the woods open up a breathtaking field known as Talindi Top, which gives some exceptional views of Mt. Nanda Ghunti and Mt. Trishul. Now you will descend for about 1.5 km to reach the Brahmatal campsite, and from here, Brahmatal Lake is just 500 meters.
